FOCUS ON UNIVERSITY VALUES: INTEGRITY

The Division of Administration and Finance contributes to the University mission by managing resources and creating a culture that facilitates and promotes teaching, learning and research. The values of our Division provide a foundation for all of our professional interactions, division goals and campus initiatives. Integrity is one of four core values of our Division.

Integrity is defined as adherence to moral and ethical principles and as the soundness of moral character. Integrity means fulfilling your promises and being honest with yourself and with others; in other words, doing what you say you are going to do. Maintaining integrity also means doing what is right rather than what is easiest and doing the right things at the right time. The Division values integrity as an invaluable quality for strong, capable leaders and colleagues. Together, the Division values integrity to ensure individuals are treated with dignity and respect and individual and division contributions, as well as actions and words, are aligned.

CSUF to Acquire Western State University College of Law

At their Sept. 19 meeting, the CSU Board of Trustees approved the funds for Cal State Fullerton to purchase the Western State University College of Law.

The acquisition is part of Cal State Fullerton’s long-term goal to expand the land-locked campus. The 86,000-square-foot property will include classrooms, a library, and an additional 300 parking spaces for students and faculty. The college is located across the street from CSUF at the corner of Dorothy Lane and North State College Boulevard and was purchased using a combination of funds from the CSU systemwide revenue bond program and CSUF’s extended education program.

The Western State University College of Law will pay rent and continue to occupy the building for another three years, which will help offset the purchase cost. CSUF will take over the property in year four and rent the space as needed, similar to how it operates the College Park Building.

While several departments are currently being considered, the occupation of the space will be determined within the next two years by an appointed committee.

Contracts and Procurement Recognized for Excellence

Contracts and Procurement has once again received the Annual Achievement of Excellence in Procurement (AEP) Award for 2012. This is the fourth consecutive year that Cal State Fullerton has earned this award from the National Procurement Institute (NPI). The award is designed to recognize organizational excellence in public procurement operations, based upon a scoring earned on standardized criteria measuring innovation, professionalism, e-procurement, productivity and leadership attributes of the function. In 2012, 177 organizations applied for the AEP award, and CSUF was one of four institutions within the CSU system to be granted the award.
